Yates' Opening Statement Results in More
Activity in Race

Candidates in Villages
Marking Time

With voters to go to the polls in less than two months, prospects are that one of the hottest pre-primary fights in years will be witnessed for the mayoralty nominations of the Democratic and Republican parties.

Activity was opened up this week when Adrian Yates, former clerk of courts, now a candidate on the Democratic ticket, announced his platform. The pledges made by the candidate have resulted in much comment. Mr. Yates claims that the platform, opening move in his campaign, brought him many friends and supporters.

Kuns on Record

Mayor W. B. Cady, in the midst of his second year in office, has built a strong organization and, although he has not come into the open with a declaration of what he intends to do, the mayor has been often heard to say he is campaigning for a second term on the record of his first term. His collection reports shows much activity in his police court.

Just what kind of a campaign Raymond H. Smith, ex-policeman, will make is not certain. Smith is planning to go to Camp Perry with the Ohio National guard unit for at least part of the summer. He does this his time for campaigning will be decidedly reduced. He is now employed in the Searg Nicholas Canning plant in Cincinnati.

On the other side of the fence there is also apt to be a "hoss-race" with five candidates in the field.

Five for G. O. P.

They are: E. C. Price, W. G. Graham, A. J. Lyle, Harry V. Phoebe, and Elmer E. Smith.

Just who the favored one will be in this group is far beyond a prediction. All are strong candidates, all have many followers, and all are planning strong campaigns.

Contests for other city offices promise to be just as heated. Three persons are campaigning for the job of city auditor, Miss Lillian Young, the incumbent, and John Hiram, on the Democratic side, and Mrs. Fannie B. Kirkpatrick on the Republican ticket. Office contests are found in the treasurer and council races with only Solicitor Carl C. Leist and President of Council John Goeller going through unopposed.

Little activity has been reported in the various villages of the county although some movement is seen in Ashville. This village, where two public works projects have been completed under an aggressive administration, will have a contest, for the simple reason that it has never been without one.

Margulis Mentioned

Mayor E. E. Frankforter is expected to again enter, and Harry Margulis, attorney, has been mentioned. John S. Hoover, justice of the peace, declares that he will not be in the race.

All candidates for village jobs file by petition.

An invitation was issued to every resident of Ashville today by Mayor E. E. Frankforter, the Community club and others of Ashville to attend the birth of July celebration next Thursday.

Many of the residents in a statement to The Herald said: "We invite every one in your city to enjoy the day with us. An interesting parade is planned to move at 11 a. m. we plan to offer much entertainment in the afternoon, and dancing, play of music and fireworks during the evening. There will be free parking and able attendants and police officers to properly care for the thousands we expect."

"If you have ever attended our celebrations you will be with us again; if not, be our guests this time and enjoy real hospitality the Ashville kind."

Rumor Persists Davey to Resign Post Before Fall

COLUMBUS, June 29.—Despite vigorous denial from Governor Martin L. As Raging Rivers Overflow
Bank in Orient Country

TOKIO, June 29.—Censured downpours sending rivers raging over their banks today brought widespread death, destruction, and privation to the great industrial areas of western Japan, often before devastated by earthquakes and tidal waves.

At least twelve persons were reported dead, and around 100,000 houses under water, their inhabitants mired in misery on the rooftops waiting for rescue.

Osaka, big manufacturing city that had not yet recovered from the wave that killed 20,000 houses less than a year ago, reported over 50,000 houses submerged in today's flood.

Farther to the west, in Fukui prefecture, 25,000 more houses were inundated, and the 12 dead reported. Police indicated restoration of satisfactory communications would reveal more drownings.

Fifty-seven bridges were swept away in Kyoto when the Kamo river spread its powerful current over a thickly-populated part of the city.

Committee, Council Mem-

DRIVE WILL GO ON

Adkins Urges Good Attendance; Reid to Report

The site for Circleville's proposed city park will be selected at a meeting of the park committee, members of city council and all others interested in the project in the common pleas court room at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

Joe W. Adkins, chairman of the park drive, made the above announcement today and urged a good attendance at the meeting.

While the drive for $10,000 for the park several weeks ago fell short of its goal, the committee does not intend to stop but will go on with its original plans, Adkins said.

All proposed sites for the park, their probable cost and their advantages and disadvantages will be discussed at the general meeting. W. M. Reid, treasurer of the park drive, will make a report showing the amount of money already on hand and the pledges received.

Reason Cited

In announcing the meeting Adkins said that since so many individuals and business houses had withheld donations until a site had been chosen, it was deemed advisable to pick a site from the possible locations on hand.

Following the selection of a site, a concentrated drive will be made in the Circleville business section for additional funds with which to purchase the site chosen. With the money already on hand, members of the committee feel that any additional amount can be derived from the business drive," Adkins said.

The chairman hopes that every person interested in the park project will attend Monday's meeting.

National Federation Seeks Congressional Action to Permit Information to be Dis- seminated by Physicians, Government

TULSA, Okla., June 29.—The new president of the General Federation of Women's clubs, Mrs. Robert Campbell Lawson, will do something about this talk of birth control if it can be done. "That means, among other things, that the federation will have a dose of sociology during the next two years such as it never has had previously."

The way was opened at the recent Detroit convention, when the federation voted strongly in favor of governmental dissemination of birth control information.

"If you look at it in no other manner," Mrs. Lawson said as she sat in the rich-toned living room of her home in Tulsa on the eve of her departure for federation headquarters in Washington, D. C., "something should be done to relieve the unfortunate women of our poorer and of our mortally deficient families from the repeated necessity of child bearing."

What Federation Desires

Earnest, and in her dark eyes and black hair showing her Delaware Indian blood, Mrs. Lawson raised a protesting hand. "Understand," she cautioned, "the federation hasn't gone on record as favoring indiscriminate passing out of this information. ## GIRL SLAYER TO BE FOUND

Expect Arrest Today of 12-
Year-Old New York Minister's Child.

GREENVILLE, N. Y., June 29.—State troopers expect to arrest some time today the slayer of 12-year-old Helen Glenn, whose mutilated body was found near this little Catskill village after a 26-hour search.

The troopers were reliably reported to be closing in on a suspect seen with the girl shortly before her disappearance.

Meanwhile an autopsy by County Coroner Dr. Mahon Atkinson and Dr. Arthur Wright, a pathologist from the Albany hospital, disclosed that the girl was virtually brooked to death with a seven inch blade wielded with mortal force.

State troopers were found to have secured a lead to the slayer.

Lieutenant Curry Hager and Sergeant Walter Wheeler, in charge of the two squads of 10 men each, the county, said the daughter of the Rev. Ernest Glenn, Greenville pastor, had been dragged through the underbrush and dumped into the waters of the creek by her slayer.

The girl's body was found by school workers assigned to the search by Sheriff and Sheriff Clay Egan of Greenville.

The minister's children had been left in the care of a neighbor, on Wednesday and Helen had been seen to leave her brother Donald, home for dinner. She brought a bag of clothing to the neighbor's house and then disappeared.

Miss Luffin and Dr. Maxwell were driving east on the Refuge Park road in a sedan. Rossley and Luffin were going north toward Columbus on the Canal Winchester road. They met in an almost head-on collision.

There were no witnesses to the accident other than occupants of the two cars, but Deputy Sheriff R. C. Wilson, who made an investigation, said the car from Lancaster had the right of way. He did not know whether Dr. Maxwell stopped at the intersection which is not protected by a traffic light.

WPA PROGRAM EXPLAINED TO 11 OFFICIALS

Mayor Cady, Six Village
Mayors Get Data from County Relief Office

WILL CREATE JOBS

First Information Received on WPA Plan

Mayors of Circleville, Ashville, Williamsport, Commercial Point, New Holland, Darbyville and Turlington today had in their hands information on the new Works Progress Administration, a part of President Roosevelt's program to take people off relief and put them to useful work in the shortest possible time.

O. S. Coffey, county relief administrator, mailed the information to the mayors and also sent copies to the county commissioners, and J. Howard Sweetman, county surveyor.

The information consists of a preliminary statement received from Washington for distribution to local city and county officials.

Projects Explained

Projects under the WPA, it is explained, must not only be useful but of such nature that most of the money will go into wages. Those promising ultimate return to the federal treasury will be given first consideration and funds allotted should be promptly spent to achieve the desired results.

The projects are to be allocated to areas in relation to the number of workers on relief rolls in each area. It is believed that Circleville will participate by submitting projects to the WPA. City funds are so low at the present time, however, that it is difficult to say how the projects will be financed.

Two Groups Projects

There will be two groups of projects, federal and non-federal. Federal projects will be those financed and conducted entirely by the government through one of its departments. Non-federal projects will be financed in whole or in part by the government through a grant or loan or both. Only governmental sub-divisions may sponsor projects.

Local Wage Scale

As far as Chillicothe is concerned the schedule of monthly earnings is as follows: Unskilled, $41; intermediate, $50; skilled, $63; professional and technical, $69. In areas of less than 5,000 population, the respective scale is $40, $45, $55 and $61. Monthly earnings are in the nature of a salary and workers will be paid for time lost due to weather or temporary interruptions on the projects. Deductions will be made for absence from work. Employees will work not over eight hours a day nor more than 40 hours a week.

No person under 16 years of age, or persons whose age or physical conditions make a safe employment dangerous to himself or others, may be employed. Only one member of a family may be employed except by special dispensation.

While the preliminary statement still leaves many questions unanswered in the minds of local officials, it provides some basis for planning projects by the various city and county political subdivisions.

POLICE HUNT FOR DICKINSON SLAYER

DETROIT, Mich., June 29.—Police today spread a farflung dragnet for William Schweitzer, "man of many aliases," a possible suspect in the murder of Howard Carter Dickinson, 35-year-old New York attorney and nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the United States Supreme Court.

A search also was in progress for two pretty cut-throats and another man who were said by police to have been with Dickinson and Schweitzer shortly before the arrestor's half-brother was found on a lonely road near Rouge Park, Thursday morning.

Schweitzer became the key figure in the murder investigation through the story of Andrew Snygen, a taxicab driver, who was picked up by police for questioning after detectives tapped a telephone wire to the room of Schweitzer at a hotel here. Schweitzer, police said, had been registered at the hotel under the name of Lee Ferris.

Did You Know

By Pat J. Kirwin

THAT the town of Circleville, Kansas, was named for our own Circleville by Joseph Cook, uncle of Mrs. Fannie Parks, Watt-st.

Mr. Cook left this city in 1858 with his wife and daughter Ellen, who is now Mrs. Ellen Myers, aged 89. He went to Leavenworth, Kansas, and later emigrated to the site which is now Circleville, Kansas.

Mrs. Myers is still in excellent physical condition despite her advanced age and is living in the town which her named more than 70 years ago. She is a granddaughter of James Greeno, who was a soldier in the War of 1812 and the last soldier to pass away in the original Circleville regiment.

A recent issue of a Kansas newspaper says that Mrs. Myers "has a bright sparkle in her eyes, is very active and alert, lives alone in her own home, does her own work and is much interested in talking over old times with her friends, relating very accurately, historical events from 60 to 80 years ago."

She was 12 years old when her father, Joseph Cook, decided to leave Circleville in 1858 to seek his fortune in the west. They arrived in Leavenworth, Kansas on March 1 of that year and remained with Mr. Cook's nephew, Jim Dolly, until June 1 when they moved to New Brighton, Calhoun-co, Kansas.

The Cooks were the second family to arrive in New Brighton and the town was later abandoned when enough inhabitants to fill five houses failed to arrive.

According to the story told by Mrs. Myers recently, in 1860 Moses Myers and family came from Findlay, O., and it was at this time that the boarded up shacks owned by her father, Joseph Cook and others at New Brighton, were moved south to the present site of Circleville.

BEFORE the town was named, Mrs. Myers relates that her father and Moses Myers were standing in a blacksmith shop one day when the latter spoke up: "This town has no name, Cook; you're from Circleville, Ohio, let's give it that name." And Mr. Cook replied, "All right, we'll do it." So it became Circleville, Jackson-co, Kansas, instead of New Brighton, Calhoun-co, Kansas.

The 89-year-old lady, who is a first cousin of Mrs. Parks, Watt-st., also relates that a short while after the settlement of Circleville, Kansas, a man was sent back to Circleville, O., to secure aid. He received $100 in cash and three 10-bushel boxes of provisions, one box containing sugar, coffee, rice, corn meal, flour, pepper, etc.; another box containing new goods, muslin, calico, shoes, etc., and a third box containing second-hand articles. A few of the latter things were delivered but most of the provisions, the new goods and cash were never received by the people and what became of them was never known, Mrs. Myers says.

That the body of Dr. James Rowland, who served as pastor of the First Presbyterian church, E. Mound-st., from 1844-1854, is buried under the present church tower. During the last year of his ministry, a large and handsome brick edifice was built and before its completion the death of Rev. Rowland occurred. The first service, held in the basement of the building, was the funeral service of the pastor.

When the present church was built, the body of Dr. Rowland was disinterred and buried under the new tower. A plaque in the church tells of Dr. Rowland's loyal service to his congregation.

Rumor Persists Davey to Resign Post Before Fall

COLUMBUS, June 29.—Despite vigorous denials from Governor Martin L. Davey down to the state house groundkeeper, the report that Ohio's chief executive will quit his post before the fall persists. It persists to such a degree that observers are beginning to wonder that where there is so much smoke, there may be a fire underneath.

The rumor at its face value is that the governor, having made numerous reported errors and political blunders, has put the Democratic party on the "spot," and that to save the party from defeat next year, he will step out in favor of Lieutenant Governor Harold Mosier. By cleaning house this year, rectifying errors, and satisfying party chieftains, a record of accomplishment can be presented to the voters in 1936 to insure victory at the polls.

Coupled with this is the report that Senator Robert Bulkley will be awarded a diplomatic post, probably to Germany, and that Mr. Mosier after assuming the governor's chair, would appoint Mr. Davey as Senator from Ohio. This phase of the rumor is discounted by all, and it is unlikely that the Kent tree surgeon would accede to anything of this sort in view of the fact that Senator Bulkley's term has only one more year to run.

But here are some facts the meaning of which need explaining.

During the past few weeks no less than six Ohio Democratic leaders have visited Washington. Charles Sawyer, of Cincinnati, candidate for governor at the last primary, mentioned prominently as a candidate in 1936, and having the support of the old time party leaders, has been in Washington and talked to Postmaster General Farley, National Democratic boss. Lieut. Gov. Harold Mosier, James M. Cox, the sage from Dayton, Nate McCoy, postmaster at Columbus, and William Leonard, Democratic boss at Cincinnati, have all been to Washington for mysterious conferences. Henry G. Brunner, former Democratic state chairman, and now head of the HOLC in Ohio, is reported planning a trip to the national capital next week.

Another fact, which was learned from reliable sources is the explanation of the mysterious absence of Gov. Davey during the past week. For three days, Mr. Davey and Francis W. Poulson, Democratic State Chairman, were absent from Columbus. No one knew where they were and inquiries as to their whereabouts received only blank replies. It is now reported that Mr. Davey and Mr. Poulson were in New York and there met Postmaster Farley. There is no confirmation for this report, but if it is true, then more basis is given the alley-cat rumor.

At least twelve persons were reported dead, and around 100,000 houses under water, their inhabitants huddled in misery on the roof-tops waiting for rescue. Osaka, big manufacturing city that had not yet recovered from the wave that felled 30,000 houses less than a year ago, reported over 50,000 homes were submerged in today's floods.

Farther to the west, in Fukuioka Prefecture, 25,000 more houses were inundated, and the 12 dead reported. Police indicated reestablishment of satisfactory communications would reveal more drownings.

Fifty-seven bridges were swept away in Kyoto when the Kang river spread its powerful current over a thickly-populated part of the city.

The dead:

Clarence Uhl, Lancaster. Clarence Reesley, Lancaster. Miss Frances Ladin, Columbus. Dr. Joseph Maxwell, physician at the Franklin-co home where Miss Ladin was a nurse, was critically hurt, but attaches at St. Francis hospital here said he would recover.

Miss Ladin and Dr. Maxwell were driving east on the Refugee Park road in a sedan. Reesley and Uhl were going north toward Columbus on the Canal Winchester road. They met in an almost head-on collision.

There were no witnesses to the accident other than occupants of the two cars, but Deputy Sheriff R. C. Wilson, who made an investigation, said the car from Lancaster had the right of way. He did not know whether Dr. Maxwell stopped at the intersection which is not protected by a traffic light.

WPA PROGRAM EXPLAINED TO 11 OFFICIALS

Mayor Cady, Six Village Mayors Get Data from County Relief Office

WILL CREATE JOBS

First Information Received on WPA Plan

Mayors of Circleville, Ashville, Williamsport, Commercial Point, New Holland, Darbyville and Tarlton today had in their hands information on the new Works Progress Administration, a part of President Roosevelt's program to take people off relief and put them to useful work in the shortest possible time.

O. S. Coffey, county relief administrator, mailed the information to the mayors and also sent copies to the county commissioners, and J. Howard Sweetman, county surveyor.

The information consists of a preliminary statement received from Washington for distribution to local city and county officials.

Projects Explained

Projects under the WPA, it is explained, must not only be useful but of such nature that most of the money will go into wages. Those promising ultimate return to the federal treasury will be given first consideration and funds allotted should be promptly spent to achieve the desired results.

The projects are to be allocated to areas in relation to the number of workers on relief rolls in each area. It is believed that Circleville will participate by submitting projects to the WPA. City funds are so low at the present time, however, that it is difficult to say how the projects will be financed.

Two Groups Projects

There will be two groups of projects, federal and non-federal. Federal projects will be those financed and conducted entirely by the government through one of its departments. Non-federal projects will be financed in whole or in part by the government through a grant or loan or both. Only governmental sub-divisions may sponsor projects.

Local Wage Scale

As far as Chillicothe is concerned the schedule of monthly earnings is as follows: Unskilled, $44; intermediate, $50; skilled, $63; professional and technical, $69. In areas of less than 5,000 population, the respective scale is $40, $45, $55 and $61. Monthly earnings are in the nature of a salary and workers will be paid for time lost due to weather or temporary interruptions on the projects. Deductions will be made for absence from work. Employees will work not over eight hours a day nor more than 40 hours a week.

No person under 16 years of age, or persons whose age or physical conditions make a job employment dangerous to himself or others, may be employed. Only one member of a family may be employed except by special dispensation.

While the preliminary statement still leaves many questions unanswered in the minds of local officials, it provides some basis for planning projects by the various city and county political subdivisions.

POLICE HUNT FOR DICKINSON SLAYER

DETROIT, Mich., June 30.—Police today spread a farflung dragnet for William Schweitzer, "man of many aliases," and known police character, as a possible suspect in the murder of Howard Carter Dickinson, 52-year-old New York attorney and nephew of Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the United States Supreme Court.

A search also was in progress for two pretty entertainers and another man who were said by police to have been with Dickinson and Schweitzer shortly before the aristocrat's bullet-riddled body was found on a lonely road near Rouge Park, Thursday morning.

Schweitzer became the key figure in the murder investigation through the story of Andrew Smygen, a taxi cab driver, who was picked up by police for questioning after detectives tapped a telephone wire to the room of Schweitzer at a hotel here. Schweitzer, police said, had been registered at the hotel under the name of Lee Ferris.

CHURCH OF CHRIST (Undenominational)

R. Tibbs Maxey, Minister.

10 a. m. Devotional, sermon, communion and church school. 7 p. m. Young People meet. 8 p. m. Preaching. The evening will be patriotic.

Last Sunday night young people had charge of the preaching hour, giving the sermons—five short or five minute sermons by as many young persons on the way of salvation, viz: Faith; Repentance; Confession; Baptism and the Victorious Life. Each message was of high type. The service was attended by a larger crowd than usual for Sunday night.

After the service about 25 young people went to the home of the minister for a brief social period which was closed by Christian songs and prayer. It was a happy evening for youth as well as a delight to the older folk. No class of youth has a happier time than Christian youth. Last Sunday was an impressive illustration of that fact.

The above mentioned program had been arranged for some time and could not be postponed on account of the Sunday school convention which had been changed to Sunday.

Remember this is temperance Sunday. The next day, Monday, the first day of July our nation starts on new spree. The spending of a billion dollars in a single 2 month preparing for war. A time for temperance indeed!

The harvest time is here. Never have we seen wheat look more beautiful or more promising. In the old time always the first sacrifice. None of it was consumed by the tiller until this had been done. Would we not all be better off, spiritually, materially, if this old custom had not been allowed to die out? We need no law. Each of us in these things be a law unto ourselves. It would strengthen our faith in God as the Giver. There is a harvest time for the soul. If neglected it leads to lament. "The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved."

Do your part. Go to church tomorrow. Take a friend.

RELIGION AND GOVERNMENT

Calvin Coolidge once said, "Religion has laid the foundation of government. This is pre-eminently true of our American political system. It neither seeks nor claims any justification for its existence save righteousness. It had its beginnings, it found its inspiration, in the religious belief of the men who settled our country, made it an independent nation, and established and maintained its Constitution and its laws. If it is to endure, it will be through the support of men of like mind and character. The government of a country never gets ahead of the religion of a country."

Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT Sunday?

To be a good patriot a man must consider his countrymen as God's creatures and himself as accountable for his acting towards them.—Berkely.

The world only grows better because people wish it better and take the right steps to make it better.

If God intended that we should talk more than we hear, he would have given us two mouths and one ear.

The strange thing is that a man is satisfied with so little in himself and demands so much in others.

A man who won't let his religion interfere with his business, frequently allows his business to interfere with his religion.

Ingratitude blocks all the avenues of fellowship between man and man, as well as between man and God.

There are 37,096,000 members of the Anglican faith throughout the world according to a recent survey.

An open letter of friendship to the Japanese people signed by 301 American religious leaders was made public in Japan recently. The message which was released by Dr. Harold E. Fey, secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, religious pacifist organization, was sent "because of the failure of the protests from church and peace organizations to secure the cancellation of the naval maneuvers in the North Pacific." Among the signers of the letter were 14 bishops, many college presidents, ministers, rabbis and editors of the religious press.

Twenty-three cents a week was the average contribution of Protestant church members during the last fiscal year for all church purposes in the United States and Canada. The previous year the average was thirty-one cents. This includes the figures for 25 of the leading denominations of Protestantism. A total of $229,416,781 was contributed by 24,816,206 members. The Moravian church led with per capita contributions of $24.16.

A resolution of greeting and goodwill from the Christians of Japan to the Christians of the United States was adopted by the executive committee of the National Christian Council of Japan on the occasion of the arrival of Dr. Ivan Lee Holt of St. Louis, president of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

At its final session, the one hundred and thirty sixth New York annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal church adopted a resolution expressing abhorrence of war as a means of settling international disputes and pledging its members to make its abolition one of the chief objectives of the Christian ministry.

The first Independence Day was marked by silence contrary to many unhistorical fancies which have sprung up about its observance. No enthusiasm was evident. No cheering crowds filled the streets. The old liberty bell uttered no note. The committee appointed to draft the Declaration of Independence finished its work on July 4 and it was adopted by the Continental Congress at nightfall. Thomas Jefferson's handwriting and wording were evident in the document.

On July 8 the liberty bell was rung after the Declaration was read to the assembled people in the State House yard. That night bonfires burned and church chimers were rung. On July 9 the Declaration was ordered engrossed on parchment and to be signed later by every member. This was done August 2, 1776. The original document no more is shown to visitors.

MRS. DUNLAP HOSTESS TO SEWING CLUB

Mrs. John Dunlap Sr. delightedly entertained the members of the Sew and So club at her country home near Williamsport, Friday afternoon. Fourteen enjoyed the pleasant hours spent in sewing and the delectable refreshments served by the hostess later in the afternoon.

ANNUAL PIANO RECITAL CONCLUDED FRIDAY

Friday night's musical program at the home of Mrs. Leon Van Vliet, W. High-st., concluded the annual recital of Mrs. Van Vliet's piano pupils.

The recital is always presented in four programs. The class being large it is divided into four groups. The musicale this year was Thursday and Friday afternoons and evenings.

Each program was well-received by a large number of parents and friends and the recital this year showed a marked advancement in each pupil, reflecting much credit on Mrs. Van Vliet, a talented instructor.

Miss Eleanor Dreisbach opened Friday evening's program with a few remarks about Fritz Kreisler and Ignace Paderewski, composers of the two selections she played. One of the selections played by Miss Eleanor McAbee, "Dancing Reels" was composed by Frank R. Meier, teacher of Mrs. Van Vliet. Rivalry was so keen in the group of young students that it was difficult to decide which deserved the laurels.

The duo piano selection, "Lucia Di Lammermoor," which closed the program, was greeted with hearty applause before the listeners dispersed.

The first three programs have appeared in earlier editions of The Herald and the following is Friday evening's numbers played by the more advanced students:

The Old Refrain by Kreisler and Minnet by Paderewski, Eleanor Dreisbach; Only a Dream by Eddy and Dancing Reels by Frank R. Meier, Eleanor McAbee; Tres-Jollie by Waldteufel, Ethel May; duet, Valse Elegante by Krug, Marvene Wallace and Mrs. Van Vliet; Country Gardens by Trainor, Eleanor Stout; Music Among the Pines by Wyman, Eyer Dreisbach; duet, Marche Militaire by Tschakowsky, Eyer Dreisbach and Mrs. Van Vliet; Grande Valse Caprice by Engelmann and Prelude by Chopin, Virginia Dreisbach; duet, The Witches' Flight by Russell, Junior Mowery and Mrs. Van Vliet.

Dance Hongroise by Du Val and Sunbeams and Roses by Bliss, Eleanor McDill; Valse Intermezzo by Egging played on two pianos by Helen Hill, June West, Robert Greeno and Marvene Wallace; Fantaisie-Etude by Smith, Martha Belle Ferguson; Will O' The Wisp by Mac Dowell and Here's to the Spring by Chopin, Betty Weiler; Rustle of Spring by Sinding and March of the Dwarfs by Greig, June West; Lucia Di Lammermoor by Fasanotti, played on two pianos by Martha Belle Ferguson, June West, Junior Mowery, Gladys Noggle, Wahnta Barnhart and Betty Weiler.

GRANGE ENJOYS MOTHER AND FATHER PROGRAM

Honoring the mothers and fathers in the grange an appropriate program was presented Friday night at the regular meeting of Washington grange and enjoyed by seventy-five members.

The entertainment opened with a song by a group of younger members, followed by a reading, "Tribute to Mother" by Miss Nellie Riffle. Presentation of flowers to the mothers and fathers was made by the juvenile members after which Gail List gave a recitation, "Our Parents."

Thomas Heffner entertained with two vocal numbers, "Mother Macree" and "Smiling Through." This was followed by a recitation, "When Pa Was a Boy" by Earl Palm and a vocal solo, "Who Puts Me in My Little Bed" by Miss Mary Walters.

A playlet, "Grandmother's Rose Jar," was presented by Miss Alma Glick, Mary Katherine and Helen Bowman, Bernadine List, Patty Bennett, Charles McCoy, George Stealy and Jean Palm.

A selection by a quartet concluded the program. The quartet comprised of Miss Ruth Delong, Mrs. Merle Bowman, Ralph Delong and Thomas Heffner sang "When You and I Were Young Maggie."

The school auditorium was prettily decorated with summer flowers for the meeting which was concluded with a social hour during which a lunch was served.

merely a scrap of paper. I intend to push this one and to push it aggressively."

In Mrs. Lawson's own immediate family, small family groups have been the rule. She was an only child. She has only one son, Edward C. Lawson of Tulsa, an outstanding young oil man. Her son and his wife have only one child.

Mrs. Lawson, continuing her interview, said:

"The protests I have had against this resolution of the convention are enough to convince me that it is a worthy project. You should see some of the letters; so many of them are from illiterate people who are on the charity rolls." She quoted figures to show the heavy birth rate increase among those receiving direct relief, a figure that has caused social workers concern for the past two or three years.

Desires Congressional Action Mrs. Lawson says she intends to push vigorously to obtain congressional action that will consummate this part of the program of the federation. And that is just one phase of what she has in mind.

"Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, my predecessor," she said, "took as her slogan 'These United States'. Mine is 'Education Based on These United States'." And that, of course, recalled the fact that Mrs. Lawson is a trustee of the University of Tulsa, a 15-year-member of the board of regents of Oklahoma College for Women and member or director of half a dozen educational groups.

What does the slogan mean? Well, it isn't especially concerned with the three R's.

Mrs. Lawson's Views

"Club work is educational," Mrs. Lawson maintained. "It should broaden the horizon, mentally, of women. The world is wondering what is happening, what is about to happen, what the other fellow is doing and how that affects us. Everybody is interested in the economic problems that are confronting us as well as the political upheavals."

Mrs. Poole's slogan was interpreted in civic terms, a study of government and of the country as a whole. I plan to continue that, but yes, you probably would say that my program will be sociological as far as it can and still fall within the plans of the federation."

With her daughter and Mrs. O. S. Harman will visit here with Mrs. Eleanor W. Bissell, E. Main-st.

Miss Lucille Neuding, E. Main-st., will return Tuesday from a visit with friends at Magnetic Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Neuding, E. Main-st., and Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, Pickney-st. are spending the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker, Williamsport, at their cottage at the Lancaster Camp grounds.

Miss Mary Porter, Saltcreek-twp., has as her guests, Mrs. C. F. Brown of Chicago and John and Daniel Porter of Urbana, Ill.

Roosevelt Elated by Public Reception of His Share-Wealth Measure

WASHINGTON—At no time during his administration has the President looked and acted so rejuvenated. White House callers report he is bubbling over with enthusiasm over the country's reception to his tax message. He regards the message as one of the best in his career. There has been no change in Roosevelt's diet. For fear of increasing weight—due to lack of exercise—the President cannot eat sugar, potatoes and other starchy foods. He particularly dislikes giving up dessert. . . . Andrew Jackson, an examiner at the Securities and Exchange Commission is distantly related to President Andrew Jackson. . . . The Social Security Act excludes domestic servants, farmers, farm workers and casual labor from those receiving its benefits. This leaves out most Negro workers.

Crack Down

Senator Bill Borah is reported to be awaiting an opportune moment to crack down publicly on the presidential ambitions of Herbert Hoover. Borah's friends say he feels very strongly that with Hoover as GOP standard-bearer, the party would be doomed not only to defeat but to permanent annihilation. . . . In the last six months the Securities and Exchange Commission has put more than 200 stock dealers out of business. . . . "Cactus Jack" Garner, who has been making Vice Presidential history by taking a leading behind-the-scenes role in legislative matters, has established another precedent. He is the first Vice President to be voted a mileage allowance to and from his home. . . . Baldpate Donald Richberg is threatening to go the way of another ex-NRA ruler. Don is considering writing a book on his Blue Eagle experiences. Close friends are counseling him against it. . . . Miss Josephine Roche, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, is being strongly urged by liberals for appointment to the new National Labor Relations Board being created under the Wagner Labor Disputes Act. She is proposed for the place now held by Professor Henry A. Millis, who wants to return to his job as head of the economics department of the University of Chicago.

THE NATION'S BIRTHDAY

THE observances of the nation's birthday tend to develop much like our own personal birthdays.

What does the boy of 10 value most when he reaches the elevated age of 10 years? What he is looking for is a good big feed, perhaps a new outfit for baseball, and he likes to brag how much he has grown. But when that boy gets to be 50 years old, a different kind of celebration will appeal to him.

When the United States first celebrated its birthday on July Fourth, the ideas was to express joy by making a tremendous noise. In making these big noises, many destructive fires were set, many children lost their eyes or suffered severe burns. And though such performances seem childish, they are still popular with the kid crowd.

But gradually people learn to celebrate the nation's birthday in a more intelligent way. A good day of beautiful out-door recreation is an improvement over the old idea of making a big noise. When the folks fill their picnic baskets with nice sandwiches and luscious cake, and lie themselves out to some rustic scene, they do something more worthy of the day.

GARBO YEARNS FOR THE SOIL

THOSE who are inclined to be captious may find reason for disagreement in the declaration of Greta Garbo that "The things which have to do with the soil are the only things which are pure, fine and wonderful."

However, there can be no legitimate quarrel with her urge to get back to nature. Such a desire seems to figure prominently in the yearnings of many successful people who have long contended with materialistic problems and, having wrested substantial profits from their contacts with labor, trade and commerce, are inspired to rise into a rarified atmosphere.

This is a natural inclination and, in fact, is commendable, though it is difficult to work up any high degree of enthusiasm over Miss Garbo's plans to raise carrots, potatoes and radishes. After all, there are better things that come from the earth, such as strawberries, sweet corn, and June peas.

But, quite probably, Miss Garbo's remarks are just a little percentage of the variety handed out occasionally by important personages to impress upon their public the fundamental simplicity of their natures and their tastes.

We doubt if Miss Garbo will ever turn a hand to the raising of carrots or kindred products of the garden. Notwithstanding her complete dissatisfaction with Hollywood's emphasis upon the "box office" and her own disposition to rise above such sordid considerations, she will probably return to Hollywood from her native Sweden quite soon and will offer her talents in return for large financial rewards, not for the joy of practicing her art.

A courageous little New York youngster has undergone eighty-eight operations and, in consequence, will seldom have to discuss the same one twice when sympathetic and interested friends appear.

Iowa's Senator Dickson says "An emergency can't last for five years," which is equivalent to telling a prisoner in a steel cell with a bail and chain around his ankle that they can't throw him in jail.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Barger hospital was turned over to the city, the keys being delivered to Mayor B. T. Hedges by S. F. Rife, of the hospital building commission. Appropriate exercises were held, attended by more than 1,000 people, who also inspected the building and equipment.

The work of remodeling and beautifying Trinity Lutheran church in E. Meigs-st was under way. H. M. Crites donated a pipe organ, which was included in the improvements being made.

Robert Peters and John McCrady escaped with minor injuries when a car driven by McCrady turned over at a curve on the Island road.

15 YEARS AGO

Fifty ladies participated in a mid-summer shower given in honor of Miss Ruby Mowery at the home of Mrs. Clay Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart and daughters, Virginia and Dorothy, N. Sjo-st, left for Chautauque, N. Y. to spend the summer.

Miss Helen Hays entertained a number of friends at a bridge party in honor of her guest, Miss Grace Kline, of New York City.

25 YEARS AGO

Miss Evelyn Cosgrove, who had been teaching in the Alcon schools for two years, was appointed for another term. After visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Lowe, S. Court-st, she left for Seattle, Wash., to visit with her sister.

A delightful surprise party was given Fessie Huffer, of near Darbyville, the occasion being his fifty-ninth birthday anniversary. Thirty guests were present.

Three detectives from Columbus, said to be employed by the Anti-Saloon league, made raids on two Circleville establishments and issued warrants of arrest for selling intoxicants in dry territory.

THE BUSINESS OF HOME-MAKING

School of Home Economics
OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

IMPORTANCE OF ADVERTISING

Advertising influences most of our purchases, whether we realize it or not. For that reason, faculty members in Ohio State University's school of home economics suggest that a better understanding of advertisements will be helpful in the business of home-making.

It is estimated that seventy-five millions of dollars are spent annually on newspaper advertising alone. This does not include magazines, bill-board, street cars, window displays, radio, and other media. In fact, it is said American advertising is a billion dollar industry.

Advertising is a means of creating a demand for a new product or of increasing demands for goods already used.

If a new product is manufactured or produced, it is placed on the market, advertised, and finally bought by the consumer. Advertising is also a means of developing prestige for a certain product, or the product of a particular producer.

The name is repeated again and again, in newspaper, magazine, window display, neon sign, and radio, so that it results in being accepted when offered for sale, or even asked for by some consumers.

The name is repeated again and again, in newspaper, magazine, window display, neon sign, and radio, so that it results in being accepted when offered for sale, or even asked for by some consumers.

Reading advertisements before making a purchase will usually save you time. The person desiring to rent a house usually doesn't drive aimlessly around looking for a vacant place. He consults the advertisements, eliminates the homes which obviously do not meet his needs, then visits only the ones which sound interesting.

So with advertising generally. It may save for you considerable time as well as money.

STORMY LOVE

A YOUNG NAVY MAN'S ROMANCE BY BELLE BURNS GROMER

CHAPTER 41

IN THE good-sized room that was dominated by the great cobble-stone fireplace of the retreat to which Val had brought Lia, there were built-in bunks with bright spreads of red and white checked gingham. A crude Dutch dresser bore gaily flowered china and there were a big couch, table, two arm chairs and some straight chairs that Towner proudly informed them had all been constructed on the spot. Curtains and the cushions of couch and chairs were covered with the cheery checks. The whole place was comfortable and, considering the difficulties of packing-in, even luxurious.

The small kitchenette bore a wooden sink, a sizeable camp stove and many shelves to be stocked with provisions. As the men began swiftly to unload and stow supplies Towner told Val, "We'll work fast because I just 'a soon make our overnight camp 'fore dark. We'll go down fast tomorrow, even though the road ain't in very good shape this early."

He pointed out the little stove cooler set by a brook that gurgled pleasantly over white stones a few steps from the kitchen door; he showed the younger man where he placed bacon, ham and the small amount of fresh meat. "You'll catch plenty of fish to fill in," he said. "And there's canned stuff to give variety. Here's tinned milk and butter in the cooler. The cartons of cigarettes and pipe tobacco's on the shelf in the living room. Matches in the closet. Remember what I told you, now. The woods is pretty dry even this early, so watch all fire. Bedding you'll find in them cedar lined drawers, and the portable victrola's there, too. Plenty of cordwood stacked the other side of the cabin. Piles of newspapers in here for startin' the fire. The drinkin' water's pure as a lily. There's a canoe under the house. The water off the boat's about four feet deep, but there ain't no bottom to the middle of the lake so don't go tippin' over out there 'less you're crack swimmers."

Lia huddled in a chair and looked straight before her. But called her attention to the few books and a stack of magazines on a shelf but she did not answer. Already a little mountain chill crept in with the declining sun and the low lighted fire on the stone hearth and in the cook stove. When he fetched two bear skins from the cedar closet and threw them on the floor, Lia stared down at these and Val saw her put a hand to her throat and shiver.

The sun's rays lay aslant the leaves when the young officer went out to the north to call good-by to the men. His spirits were at a low ebb when Towner called back, "Be seein' you again in 'bout two weeks, eh? Watch out for fire. An' have a good time."

Just before they disappeared on the trail Lia ran out to the porch. "Don't let them go!" she pleaded. "I'm afraid. I have the feeling something terrible is going to happen if we stay! If it does, it is your fault. Call them back. You haven't the right to keep me in this place."

He tried to quiet her, to reason with her but she thrust her fingers into her ears and would not hear him. Half beside herself, she cried, "I warn you I'll do anything to get away. I'll go the moment you aren't watching."

"Oh, no you won't," he said shortly. "It's 16 miles over a tough trail that only a trained woodsman could follow. You are afraid of the timber, let alone the bear and cougar that might be about. So don't try any such foolishness."

Defeated, she went back and threw herself across the couch, then lay shaken with sobs. Feeling as if his hurried nerves would snap with the strain Val stood helplessly regarding her. Presently, he strode across the room, opened his suit case and took out the carefully wrapped bottles of Scotch. As he fetched a tin cup and corkscrew from the kitchen his eyes were eager. A drink would be welcome!

He drank the first two fingers neat, then poured himself a second generous measure. But as he lifted the glass to his lips he realized suddenly that Lia had raised herself and watched him with cold contempt in her sullen black eyes. He felt a flush well up into his face. She had never seemed to mind his having a drink before. Not that she had spoken now. But it was the way she looked at him that was disconcerting. He wanted to put the drink down, wanted to show her it meant nothing to him. He tried it, but with no success. Finally he avoided her cold stare and took a deep swallow. How good it tasted! It buckled him to feel the warming liquid that would shortly banish his weariness and low spirits.

"Better have a spot," he said to Lia. "You must be very tired." But she only gave him a haughty little shake of the head and threw her self back into the pillows again.

After his second drink he went out to fetch fresh logs and built a new fire. The evening chill was penetrating but he rubbed on the porch to listen to the faint susurs of the leaves, the gurgle of the brook, the lap of tiny ripples against the lake shore. No other sounds broke the heavy silence.

When he re-entered the cabin the whiskey had warmed and heartened him. In the kitchen he began to open cans and boxes. After a brief interval he set the table with the flowered china and brought steaming coffee, buttered toast and hot chicken a la King from a can. But when he proudly called Lia, she did not answer. He crossed to the couch only to find that she had fallen into the deep sleep of exhaustion. Huddled there, a weary, travel-stained little figure, she looked so small and defenseless he knew a swift, blinding shame.

Perhaps he had been foolhardy to cut them off from civilization like this. What if some unforeseen thing should happen as she feared? What if either of them should fall sick or be hurt? Towner had warned him there were bear and cougar about and there was always the danger of fire in these heavily timbered sections.

As he fetched linen and blankets from the shelves his mind grew momentarily more disquieted. When he had made up Lia's bunk he carried her across and removed her tweed coat and riding boots; after that he produced nightdress and robe and slippers from her bag. She only roused enough to step out of her underthings and into her gown.

After he had covered her well and moved the lamp, he returned to the supper he had prepared; but now it was cold and though he drank the coffee, his throat seemed to constrict at even the thought of food. He could not rid himself of the growing fear that some misfortune might overtake them.

Yet it was not too late to change his mind. Towner and Bud were encamped for the night only five miles from here; those last miles were fairly well marked; and if he started now with the flashlight he could fetch them to guide the Prestons away from this lonely place and back to the world again.

Undecided, he extinguished the lamp and sank down in the freight to smoke innumerable cigarettes. He had opened a window and the night air grew piercing but still he hunched there before the dying embers. Once Lia moaned in her sleep and he winced. But after a long interval he straightened and struck his clenched fist against his other palm. No matter what came of it, he was determined to carry out this last desperate try for a better understanding between them.

A wailing cry split the night and he started upright. His heart throbbed sickeningly and it took a moment to get hold of himself. It was only the plaint of a loon on the lake but for a space it had shot his composure. He stood listening and was relieved that the eerie sound had not wakened Lia. Later when he stumbled across to his bunk and dropped down to sleep the fire was almost dead. And on the table one of the bottles of Scotch was two-thirds empty.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Joe E. Brown's latest Warner Bros. picture, "Alibi Ike," which is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Grand Theatre on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, is heralded as the most hilarious film in which the famous star has yet appeared.

The story was written by the late Ring Lardner, who probably knew baseball players better than any other author. It's a pennant winning comedy of baseball and blondes. "Alibi Ike" is a big league ball player, a crack pitcher and a batter whose average, contrary to most twirlers, runs around the 400 mark. He never makes a play on the field or off it without alibiing. Even when he falls desperately in love with the sister of the captain's wife, he alibis about it. She happens to hear him making excuses for giving her an engagement ring, and turns him down cold, which causes a series of events as thrilling as they are ludicrous.

AT THE CLIFTONA

"Folies Bergere," 20th Century's lavish musical extravaganza starring Maurice Chevalier, begins a three-day engagement at the Cliftona Theatre Sunday.

Taking its settings and its mood as well as its title from the internationally famous Parisian musical entertainment, "Folies Bergere" offers Chevalier his first dual role. He is seen both as his gay, straw-hatted, singing self and also as a be-mustached, bemomocled French baron.

Chevalier sings five new song hits, as well as a chorus of the memorable "Valencia," "Rhythm of the Rain," "Au Revoir L'Amour" "I Was Lucky" and "Singing a Happy Song" were written by Jack Meskill and Jack Stern, while Burton Lane and Harold Adamson, the team who wrote "Stormy Weather," collaborated on "You Took the Words Right Out of My Mouth."

AT THE CIRCLE

Screams and laughter will combine to make the rafters ring Sunday and Monday at the Circle Theatre, at the showing of "Mascot's" up-rising mystery comedy, "One Frightened Night."

With a beautiful girl in danger of murder, following her inheritance of $5,000,000 from an eccentric old millionaire grandfather, an hilarious vaudeville magician and two hayseed cops are said to make a new speed record in the rapidity of the laughs and chills which follow. The resulting murder mystery is finally solved by the girl's sweetheart in a whirlwind romantic finish.

Every member of the cast is known as a proven star. Included are Charley Grapewin, alluring

Mary Carlisle, ominous Artur Hohl, Evelyn Knapp, funny Wallace Ford, Hedda Hopper, Lucretia Littlefield, Regis Tomney, Fred Kelsey, Clarence Wilson, Adrian Morris and Rafaela Ottiano.

PARDON ME!

"I tell you that I won't have this room," protested the old lady to the bell-boy, who was conducting her. "I ain't going to pay my good money for a pig-sty with a measly little foldin' bed in it. If you think that just because I'm from the country."

Profoundly disgusted, the boy cut her short. "Get in, mum, get in. This ain't your room, this is the elevator."

Poems That Live

OFF IN THE STILLY NIGHT

Off in the stilly night,
Ere Slumber's chain has bound

me,
Fond Memory brings the light

Of other days around me;
The smiles, the tears,
Of boyhood's years,

The words of love then spoken;
The eyes that shone,
Now dimmed and gone,

The cheerful hearts now broken!
Thus in the stilly night,
Ere Slumber's chain has bound

me,
Sad Memory brings the light

Of other days around me.

Editorial Of The Day

REVERSE CONDITIONS

(Washington C. H. Herald)

At this time last year we were wishing for rain and cooler weather.

The thermometer then was registering each day at near the one hundred mark and rain had already, in that extraordinarily dry and hot year become a novelty much desired.

Now, one year later, we are still wishing—wishing as always—for something different, especially in weather conditions, whereas, one year ago we wished for rain and cooler weather we now wish for dry weather and more heat.

Then we feared the drought and heat would ruin our fine prospect for an abundant wheat crop. It did not. We had a bumper wheat crop which brought producers a good price.

This year we are worrying because we have had so much rain and fearing that our wheat crop will not mature in quantity and quality as it has promised to do.

We hope that the harvest time—which is near at hand now—will prove our fears groundless and that we can write into the record for reference a year hence, when worries and fears will again come, as they always do, that the worries and fears we have now were needless.

START RUNNING

While walking along a main road between two villages an engineer came across a man in charge of a traction engine that had stuck fast owing to the road giving way under the heavy weight. Deciding to help the man, he first inspected the steam-gauge. It registered ten pounds pressure.

"Fraid you'll never get out with only that bit of steam," he remarked to the driver. "Better wait until there's a bit more."

"Ten pounds, do you say?" retorted the other. "Why, man, the safety valves be screwed down 'n' that pointer's away round for the second time."—Vancouver Province.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Tea-her

TRAPPED BY DEFENDERS

PLAYERS WHO allow themselves to be trapped, as East did, do not think clearly and plan safely from the opening lead.

Bidding went: West, 1-Diamond; East, 1-No Trump; when 2-No Trumps or 2-Clubs would have been more illuminating; South, 2-Clubs; West, 2-Diamonds, showing real strength; East, 2-No Trumps; West, 3-No Trumps.

The opening lead was the 3 of hearts. If an honest lead it obviously was from the bottom of a 4-card suit, doubtless headed by the K. Before playing from dummy the declarer should have counted his certain tricks: 1 spade, 2 hearts, 2 diamonds and 4 clubs—a lay-down for game, without taking a finesse. The safe method of play is to win the first trick with dummy's Ace of hearts. Declarer wants a certain method of entering his own hand, regardless of added tricks. He needs two small hearts in dummy and the Q-J-9 in his own hand to make certain that either the first or second lead of hearts from dummy will enable East to enter, lead off his two good clubs and then lead a spade.

Instead of doing as he should, East won the opening heart lead with his 9, rendering his hearts useless for certain re-entry, as dummy's Ace and 7 block the suit. Six missing diamonds more often than not will be divided 4-2 or worse, rather than 3-3. East should have let that suit alone. He still is assured of game, by leading his Q of hearts. If the K, covers he wins with dummy's Ace, runs off two club tricks in dummy, enters his own hand with the hearts, takes two club tricks, leads a spade and without a finesse he can make 4-odd.

In case South refuses to cover East's Q of hearts with the K, East must lead a spade, and take the finesse, as North cannot harm in case he holds the K. If the spade finesse holds the declarer can overtake dummy's Q of clubs with his K, and lead his Ace of clubs. Another spade trick and two diamond tricks await him in dummy, 2 spades, 3 hearts, 2 diamonds and 3 clubs give East 4-odd. I cannot see any excuse for going down on the contract.

Instead of doing any one of many logical things, East led a diamond, when South showed out he should have won in dummy and still come game, by taking 3 club tricks, then leading the Q of hearts. He let North win with a small diamond. That player led a club and put dummy in. Dummy's second club was led and not overtaken, so that East still could go game. The hand then is hopeless and he deserved to go down a trick. Ordinarily, a player needs two small hearts in dummy and the Q-J-9 in his own hand to make certain that either the first or second lead of hearts from dummy will en-

New Woe, Radio Illness, Affects Plant Workers

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IS THE ELECTRIC energy released by radio waves entirely harmless to life?

There is certainly nothing extraordinary in the idea. Electricity is a comparatively new form of energy in human experience.

Only for a little over a hundred years has man used any energy other than heat, light, sound and mechanical energy. And when electricity was stored and released as it is in its forms have proved to have harmful or fatal effects on living tissues and organisms.

That wireless short waves may cause a definite set of symptoms is plainly hinted in the name recently coined "short-wave sickness."

It affects those whose work brings them into prolonged contact with powerful wireless transmitting plants. The symptoms consist of a persistent headache, marked drop of blood pressure, dizziness and general lassitude.

No serious or permanent effects have been reported. The symptoms disappear after withdrawal from exposure, but return very promptly on re-exposure. So it looks as if a sensitization had been produced.

While it all sounds somewhat dramatic and sensational, I find myself quite ready to believe it. In fact, I have examined a patient who was said to be suffering from it. He was not at all of an hysterical build, and told a perfectly straightforward and creditable story.

In the early days of the X-rays

These forms of energy are made of the order of nature, but I am sure the X-ray does not exist spontaneously in nature. Only when that ingenious little monkey, man, released an electric discharge in a vacuum tube was it produced. The radio has been blamed for disturbances in the weather, and many other things.

It may be that mankind will eventually be destroyed by the machinery which it has created.

Or perhaps we shall have to give up radio altogether.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clending can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

GOLF FACTS

Number 654

ALEX MORRISON says:

Most golfers have prized possessions about their kits. Mine is an old aluminum putter I've had since my caddy days. It has a suggestion of loft to the face which makes it easy to line up a putt.

I also have a plain steel head putter. This is used where the greens are fast. At times, like every other player I tighten up so that my putting stroke becomes pretty much of a stab.

Then I switch to the aluminum putter. This makes it easier to swing smoothly. This combination of putters is good for all players.

Henry Picard found it so good that he has gone away to England with my prized putter. He used it during a practice round the other day. It brought back his putting touch.

If it helps him to win the British open I'll make him a present of it!

STORY OF BRADDOCK No. 5—A Miracle Occurs

Braddock made the most of his chance to return from obscurity last summer when he met Corn Griffin in a preliminary to the Carnera-Baer bout. Floored in the second round, Jimmy got up and knocked Griffin out.

John Henry Lewis, Negro brawler from the Pacific coast, was being built up last summer into a major attraction. Braddock was regarded as an easy trial horse. They were matched in New York last November.

Again Braddock surprised those who thought his previous victories for Lewis were merely luck. He floored Lewis for a count of nine, and went on piling up points on the colored star to win by a decision.

Braddock's victories forced his consideration in the Garden's heavyweight elimination tournament this spring. Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston signed him to meet Art Lasky, hard hitting Minneapolis mauler.

Braddock gave the touted Lasky a decisive drubbing. But Max Schmeling, German, who stopped Steve Hamas, was favored as a challenger for Max Baer because of his drawing power.

RED BIRDS DISCLOSE NIGHT GAME PLANS

COLUMBUS, June 27—A variation in the customary night game schedule of the Columbus Red Birds was announced today by President George M. Trautman. Since the lights were first installed at the Mound-st Stadium in 1932, the Birds have ordinarily played under the lights each Thursday night during the summer months with an extra game or two thrown in for good measure. This season a Tuesday-Thursday schedule will be followed, according to Trautman.

Balked by rain in their first attempt at night baseball this year, on June 6, the inaugural under the lights will occur on the first day of the coming home schedule, July Fourth. The Birds will then play night games against Milwaukee on July 9, Kansas City July 11, St. Paul July 16, Minneapolis July 18 and Louisville July 23 and 25, the latter date marking the end of the home campaign. The same schedule is expected to be followed throughout the remainder of the season.

When the Red Bird ticket office opened Thursday morning there were many reservations for the July Fourth celebration already on hand indicating that the Birds will again play to a capacity crowd on this date. Last year close to 16,000 people thronged the Stadium for the pretentious program and this year even more elaborate entertainment plans are being laid. Gates of the Stadium are to open at 3:30 while a twilight game with Toledo is scheduled for 5 o'clock.

The Knot Hole Band, the American Legion Band and the band from Fort Hayes will supply music during the first game and during the second under the lights at 8:30. Between games the Fort Hayes troops are to present a military display. The night game will be followed by an extensive display of fireworks.

Why Not Baseball?

The question has been asked scores of times: "Why is there no good, well-backed baseball team in Circleville?" and the answer is obvious: "There isn't a place in Circleville where a baseball game could be played."

Had Gots Team

Long ago Circleville had baseball teams that could compete with any in the section of the state, the old Buckeyes and Eagles and other teams, but "them was the days." Now it is possible to pack a crowd any to see any game that is free, but to charge them two-bits would be like cutting off a finger. We'll wager that some of the men who go to every recreation ball game and cry the loudest at a poor play or poor decision are men who have never yet dropped a dime in the hat.

Ashville at Home

We'll again advise you to go to Ashville Sunday to see some mighty good semi-professional baseball between Geo Bee Stoker's up-and-coming team and that representing Gahanna. The fact that most of the players on both teams are from Columbus doesn't detract a bit from the village interest. A double bill is on tap with the first conflict starting at 1:30—Hurlers will be Swinehart and Meier for Ashville and Southard and Doddore for Gahanna.

Activity in City

There will probably be some kind of activity on the SE Electric Co. field Sunday afternoon probably with one of the city's hard ball teams, either Bill Howe's or the Jones Specials, in action.

COURT TO TEST DAVEY'S FUND JUGGLING PLAN

Utilities Commission Files Mandamus Action Against State Control Board.

COLUMBUS, June 29.—The efforts of Governor Mifflin L. Davey to block a court test of his fund juggling plan were thwarted today when the Public Utilities commission filed a petition in mandamus against the State Control Board.

The petition requests the court to order the state board to exercise its powers in permitting the transfer of $9,500 from salary funds to maintenance items vetoed by the governor in his $8,800,000 appropriation slash. If the petition is granted, the question of authority to make such transfers, raised by the attorney general John Bricker and state auditor Joseph Tracy will have been settled in favor of the governor.

Other departments needing such transfers to keep up necessary activities and state universities will be permitted to transfer funds if the court rules that the board has such power. In event of a contrary ruling, that is, if the mandamus petition is not allowed, the entire problem will be tossed back into Governor Davey's lap.

Chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, Edward J. Hoppie had withheld the petition Thursday at the request of the governor in the hope of reaching an amicable conclusion, "but after a conference Friday between legal advisers to the PUC and the chief executive, it was decided to proceed towards a final adjudication of the question," he said.

The Supreme Court will hear the case Saturday, July 6.

Governor Davey has indicated that he will not call a special session of the legislature to re-appropriate the vetoed items even if the court refuses to grant the mandamus petition.

COURT TO TEST DAVEY'S FUND JUGGLING PLAN

Utilities Commission Files Mandamus Action Against State Control Board.

COLUMBUE, June 29.—The efforts of Governor Martin L. Davey to block a court test of his fund juggling plan were thwarted today when the Public Utilities commission filed a petition in mandamus against the State Control Board.

The petition requests the court to order the state board to exercise its powers in permitting the transfer of $9,500 from salary funds to maintenance items vetoed by the governor in his $8,800,000 appropriation slash. If the petition is granted, the question of authority to make such transfers, raised by the attorney general John Bricker and state auditor Joseph Tracy will have been settled in favor of the governor.

Other departments needing such transfers to keep up necessary activities and state universities will be permitted to transfer funds if the court rules that the board has such power. In event of a contrary ruling, that is, if the mandamus petition is not allowed, the entire problem will be tossed back into Governor Davey's lap.

Chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, Edward J. Hoppie had withheld the petition Thursday at the request of the governor in the hope of reaching an amicable conclusion, "but after a conference Friday between legal advisers to the PUC and the chief executive, it was decided to proceed towards a final adjudication of the question," he said.

The Supreme Court will hear the case Saturday, July 6. Governor Davey has indicated that he will not call a special session of the legislature to re-appropriate the vetoed items even if the court refuses to grant the mandamus petition.

Borah Doesn't Want Fuss on Birthday

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Senator William Edgar Borah, Republican of Idaho, is 70 years old today but he is not boasting about it.

In fact, you would be doing him a favor not to remind him that today is his birthday. He doesn't mind getting old, but he hates to have anyone make a fuss over the fact that he is celebrating another birthday.

So just to prove that he is sincere, today found him laboring over coming legislation at his long and paper-piled desk in the Senate office building.
